Keep Hating Sin

Love must be sincere. Hate what is evil; cling to what is good. Be devoted to one another in love. Honor one another above yourselves. Never be lacking in zeal, but keep your spiritual fervor, serving the Lord. Be joyful in hope, patient in affliction, faithful in prayer. Share with the Lord's people who are in need. Practice hospitality. (Romans 12:9-13 NIV)

One of the things that makes sin so deceptive is that it is very easy to get used to. We may think that we would never do what others do, but if we are exposed to it long enough, we begin to accept it, at least for them. From there it is only a short step to accepting it for ourselves. We see this tragic process played out in the life of Lot. When he left Abraham, he first faced his tent in the direction of Sodom, and eventually moved there with his entire family. He wasn't planning to stay, as the evil men of the city pointed out during their attack. "And they said, Stand back, Get out of our way!. And they said again, "This fellow came in as a foreigner, and he wants to play the judge! We will we deal worse with thee, than with them. And they kept bringing pressure on Lot, and moved forward to break the door down" (Genesis 19:9).

Lot's plan wasn't to relocate to Sodom permanently, but the longer he stayed the harder it was to leave. He started tolerating what those around him were doing, with devastating results to his own family.

If we get to the point where sin is no longer hateful and disgusting to us, we are in great danger of spiritual catastrophe. We are not meant to isolate ourselves from the world and withdraw completely, but we must not adapt our hearts and consciences to the sin around us either.

Alexander Pope (English Poet) wrote:

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.

Sin does not become “right” because more people do it.
While loving sinners, we must not lose our hatred for sin.
