God's Certain Promises

And it shall come to pass, when thy days be expired that thou must go to be with thy fathers, that I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build me an house, and I will stablish his throne forever. I will be his father, and he shall be my son: and I will not take my mercy away from him, as I took it from him that was before thee: But I will settle him in mine house and in my kingdom forever: and his throne shall be established for evermore.

1 Chronicles 17:11-14 KJV

When the Israelites insisted on having a king, God directed Samuel to Saul from the tribe of Benjamin. Saul was at first a humble and courageous man, but over time his pride grew to the point where he thought he could choose whether to obey God or not. In response to his rebellion, God announced that Saul would be removed from the kingship and his children would not inherit the throne. Saul spent years trying to kill David to keep that prophecy from being fulfilled. In the end he was slain by the Philistines and David did indeed become king over Israel.

Although David was not perfect, he did devote his whole heart to God, and sought to follow Him. “O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is;” (Psalm 63:1). Because of his obedient heart, God made a promise to David that unlike what had happened with Saul, his descendants would continue to rule over Israel. When the nation was divided, the northern kingdom had numerous short-lived dynasties but the southern kingdom was always ruled by the house of David.

Of course the Babylonian captivity ended Israel's time as an independent nation with a king. But the promises of God are sure, and Jesus, the son of David, will rule over all the world.

People may fail or let us down, but God never breaks a single promise that He has made.
