Hands Off!

I remember bobbing for apples when I was a child, a game that required me to have my hands tied behind my back. Trying to grab a floating apple with my teeth without the use of my hands was a frustrating experience. It reminded me of the vital importance of our hands—we eat with them, greet with them, and use them to do just about anything that is vital to our existence.

When I read Psalm 46:10, I find it interesting that God says, “Be still, and know that I am God.” The Hebrew word for “still” means to “cease striving,” or, literally, “to put our hands at our side.” At first glance this seems to be a rather risky piece of advice, since our first instinct in trouble is to keep our hands on the situation and control it to our advantage. God in essence is saying, “Hands off! Let Me deal with your problem, and rest assured that the outcome is in My hands.”

But knowing when to take our hands off and let God work can make us feel vulnerable. Unless, that is, we believe that God is indeed “our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble” (v.1) and that “the LORD of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge” (v.7). In the midst of trouble, we can rest in God’s care.

Lord, forgive me for always wanting to manage my own affairs.

Teach me to trust in Your wise and timely intervention in my life and to keep my hands out of Your way.

When we put our problems in God’s hands, He puts His peace in our hearts.

Insight

We often think of this passage in times of busyness and stress, and we emphasize that the stillness means “to cease striving.” But the imagery in verses 2-4 and 8-9 (the destruction of the earth and the weapons of war) suggests that even when self-preservation is the aim, our hands should be at our sides and our trust should be in God.

Thank You Received

The following thank you to the congregation has been received from John Gardner (Julie Miller's father in Jackson, MS) "Dear Sunshine church family, It is difficult to find the right words to express our love and gratitude for your outpouring of compassion during my recent treatment for eye cancer. Your prayers and words of encouragement have lifted our spirits through a challenging time. Thank you for such kindness. My eye seems to be doing well, but we will know more at the end of the month. So please continue to pray for me. John and Linda Gardner."

Adoption Sunday Today

Today is the official celebration of Adoption Sunday in churches all over the world. We join with those churches to encourage and support families which grow through the miracle of adoption. A special article appears in the October issue of Christianity Today on this subject. The article is too lengthy to include here in the bulletin so here is the link which will take you to that article.
