"Myself - Unplugged"

"There are two ways of spreading light: to be the candle or the mirror that reflects it." - Edith Wharton

This week is transitional for our humble abode... since the kids are home on fall break - let's just say this is a good time to make good on some room changes: Aric is moving upstairs to my office (think Greg moving to the Brady attic), the spare room goes in Aric's old room and my office takes over grandma's room/visitors quarters. (There will be a test later.)

All of that - brought us to this... as I was moving Aric's dresser mirror upstairs last evening, I turned to see... myself. Quite disheveled at the end of the day, sweating, hair unkept and life unplugged - let's just say not my best look. It's a good thing we didn't have any unexpected visitors last night. They probably wouldn't have recognized me.

"A good man brings good things out of the good stored up in his heart, and an evil man brings evil things out of the evil stored up in his heart. For the mouth speaks what the heart is full of." Luke 6:45

"But because of your stubbornness and your unrepentant heart, you are storing up wrath against yourself for the day of God's wrath, when his righteous judgment will be revealed." Romans 2:5

Transitional moments (a birth, a death, a late night or early morning, a change in life's flow, difficult news or a troubling diagnosis, when the kids are in rare form or when I have been undone by life's unplanned and unavoidable issues)... these have a way of, shall I say, showing us as we really are. The mirror shows what's in our storage facility - that the human heart. What is stored up in in that special and hidden place during unsettling moments - will come shining out for everyone to see.

If stubbornness is stored - wrath comes out.
If good is stored - blessings emerge.

Everyone alive has a full heart. We choose what it's full of.
When you are 'unplugged' - is it 'gripe' or 'God' that comes flowing out?

The mirror doesn't lie.
