Make the tree good, and its fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt, and its fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by its fruit. O generation of vipers, how can you, being evil, speak good things? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks. A good man out of the good treasure of the heart brings forth good things: and an evil man out of the evil treasure brings forth evil things.

Matthew 12:33-35

No group more strongly rejected the message that Jesus was the Messiah than the Pharisees did. They were outraged that this upstart prophet from Galilee who had not attended the approved schools and received the official stamp of approval was so popular with the people. During a discussion about what to do about Jesus, they revealed a great deal about their motives for refusing to believe. "If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation" (John 11:48). They viewed Jesus as a threat to the way of life they had developed and were enjoying. They were not willing to acknowledge their need of salvation, or that Jesus was the promised Lamb of God.

Although the Pharisees had perfected the performance of the outward rituals of religion, there was no genuine love for God in their hearts. They only cared about how things looked on the outside, and the evil in their hearts and their lost condition were revealed by their response to the Lord. "Jesus said unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me" (John 8:42). We must guard our lives against the temptation to focus on making sure that the outward things appear right while allowing ourselves to harbor evil in our hearts. Though we may be able to fool others for a time, God sees our heart, and He knows not just what we do but why we do it.

The life that is pleasing and acceptable to God begins on the inside with what fills our hearts.

Dear Lord, remind me that this life is not all about me and my needs, but about others and how Your love can shine through me to them.

May Christlike love be my distinguishing characteristic.

As followers of Christ, our love should make us stand out in a crowd.

... Love One Another

1 John 4:11

God Loves You and We Love You Too

Have a wonderful day!
