Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me: For that they hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the LORD: They would none of my counsel: they despised all my reproof. Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices.

Proverbs 1:28-31

Alice Stewart was a British doctor and medical researcher. Both of her parents were pediatricians, and she followed them into the medical field and spent a great deal of her career on issues relating to children's diseases. Given a grant to study causes of childhood cancer in the 1950s, Stewart discovered that there was a direct link between the then-common practice of conducting x-ray examinations on pregnant mothers and their children developing cancer. Despite the thoroughness of her work, most doctors discounted her study and refused to change their approach. It was almost twenty-five years later before the medical community accepted Stewart's research. Thousands of children got cancer because the warning was not heeded.

Few of the problems we face as a result of disobedience to God come about because we were not aware of what was right and what was wrong. When there are decisions that must be made, we find that the Word of God contains commandments and principles to help guide us. God's directives are not given to harm us or keep us from enjoying good things. Instead, they are warnings that protect us from danger.

If we reject God's instructions, we should not be surprised when the results are not what we expect. As the old saying goes, "We are not responsible for failures from advice not followed."

We have a choice when we approach the issues of life. We can go our own way ignoring what God has said, but we have been warned of the consequences that will surely follow. "There is a way which seems right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." (Proverbs 14:12)

God's ways and wisdom are always superior to our own, and we benefit by seeking and following them.
